

Pointing the Way

Collected Essays

© Mak Group Media Prod. Adv. Publ. Co.
Certificate Number: 44396

Pointing the Way – Collected Essays
Martin Buber

Layout Design: Tavoos
Cover Design: Tavoos

isbn 978-625-8716-42-9

First Edition: March 2025
Printed by: Vadi Grafik - Certificate Number: 47479

Contact Information
Cinnah Avenue. Kirkpinar Street. 5/4,
06420 Cankaya, Ankara, Turkiye
+90 312 439 01 69
www.folkitap.com
bilgi@folkitap.com
siparis@folkitap.com
www.x.com: @folkitap

Pointing the Way
Collected Essays

Martin Buber

FOL

Martin Buber

He was an Austrian-born Jewish philosopher, theologian, and writer best known for his philosophy of dialogue. Born in Vienna, he spent much of his childhood in Lviv, where he developed an early interest in Jewish culture and religious thought. Buber became an influential figure in the cultural Zionist movement and later devoted much of his work to Jewish philosophy and biblical interpretation. His most famous book, I and Thou (1923), explores human relationships through the distinction between genuine dialogue and objectifying relationships. Buber emphasized the importance of encountering others as whole persons rather than treating them as objects. He also supported Jewish-Arab understanding and advocated peaceful coexistence in Palestine. From 1924 to 1933, he taught Jewish philosophy at the University of Frankfurt. After emigrating to Jerusalem in 1938, he taught at the Hebrew University until his retirement.

İçindekiler

1

Towards Authentic Existence

Books and Men

Productivity and Existence

The Demon in the Dream

The Altar

Brother Body

With A Monist

The Teaching of the Tao

to the Contemporary

2

Dimensions of Dialogue

Drama and Theatre

The Space Problem of the Stage

Goethe's Concept of Humanity

Bergson's Concept of Intuition

Franz Rosenzweig

Healing Through Meeting

Education and World-View

3

Politics, Community, and Peace

What Is to be Done?

Three Theses of A Religious Socialism

Recollection of A Death

China and Us

Gandhi, Politics, and Us

A Letter to Gandhi

People and Leader
Society and the State
The Demand of the Spirit and Historical Reality
Prophecy, Apocalyptic, and the Historical Hour
The Validity and Limitation of the Political Principle
Hope For This Hour
Abstract and Concrete
Genuine Dialogue and the Possibilities of Peace